Hosting Successful Institutional Events for Visiting Faculty and Post-Secondary Leaders: WORKSHOP

Many institutions demonstrate great competence in operating in overseas study programs for students; however, the design of study tours for members of faculty and institutional leaders requires a different approach. This half day workshop focuses on the creation of three types of study tours designed to increase faculty knowledge, garner support from senior administration officials and build relations and confidence between institutional partners in North America and overseas.

Faculty field trip study programmes are a lynch pin to institutions effective across-the-board internationalization. Like students, these audiences need exposure to the sights and history of the places being visited as well as an opportunity to refresh and upskill their knowledge. But almost more importantly, faculty and administrators also require an emphasis on the factors which will lead to a more profound internationalization impact at home.
